Join us for a book club. The Indian Lawyer by James Welch

The San Francisco Chronicle describes this novel as "At once a romance, a gripping suspense thriller, and a psychological portrait...The Indian Lawyer is a triumph."

According to poetryfoundation.org, James Welch (1940-2003) "was a prominent author of novels and poetry featuring the American West. He was born in Browning, Montana, and he attended school on the Blackfeet and Fort Belknap reservations. He studied ...at the University of Montana. Welch received honorary doctorates from Rocky Mountain College and the University of Montana. In 1997 he was honored with a Lifetime Achievement Award from the Native Writers' Circle of the Americas."
